

An aerial photograph of a wide, winding river, likely the Potomac, flowing through a lush green landscape. The river is a deep blue color, contrasting with the vibrant green of the surrounding fields and forests. The river meanders across the frame, creating a complex pattern of curves and bends. In the background, there are more green fields and some structures, possibly a farm or a small town. The overall scene is peaceful and scenic, highlighting the natural beauty of the area.

“New Report Names Potomac Nation’s Most Endangered River”

-Washington Post, May 2012

“Upstream & Down, Struggling to Make the Grade”

-Potomac Conservancy, 2011

“Chesapeake Bay gets D+, Potomac a D in new report card”

-ABC News, April 2012

“Tap water meets federal standards, but new pollutants not removed by current water purification technology”

-Washingtonian, 2012

“2011 Milestone Analysis Shows Progress”

-Chesapeake Bay Fund, July 2012